

Marci Marquis' Bio

Marci grew up in Wichita, KS and began singing as a child and studied voice through high school and college. At twenty years of age, she married her childhood friend and sweetheart from church, Randy Marquis and she later graduated from Friends University with a Bachelor of Music degree in education with plans of teaching while continuing some church concert ministry on weekends. But God had other plans and was calling her to serve in church music ministry. She had been leading worship part-time while in college and soon after graduating received a call to First Church of the Nazarene in Arlington, TX. Marci grew as a leader and servant of Christ and was ordained as a deacon in 2009. She and Randy were on staff there for fourteen years and then moved to Tulsa Regency Park where they have had the privilege of serving eight years.

While Marci has seen many changes while leading worship and music ministries over the last twenty-three years, one thing remains the same; the focus is always on Jesus, acknowledging who He is and drawing near to Him. Marci and Randy are adjusting to being empty nesters with two girls studying at Southern Nazarene University. In her spare time, Marci enjoys baking, caked decorating and pinning healthy recipes to delicious foods and treats and even making them on occasion.
